Perfect for automated and manual data transfers

Our SFTP hosting service uses the highly compatible SFTP and FTPS protocols, commonly used in automation software and hardware, and perfect for securely exchanging data with customers and suppliers. Whether you are setting up automated data file transfers for stock, orders etc. or manually transferring larger business data securely, our solution will meet your needs.

What's more, our simple, web-based interface is intuitive even for less technically-minded users. Just log in with your credentials to securely upload and download data through your chosen web browser.

"We have been a customer of Ridgeon Network for well over 10 years. The service that they provide is at an extremely high level along with their extensive knowledge and very quick response should we have any questions. Have no hesitation whatsoever in recommending them."

David W, Jersey Electric

"We have been using the Ridgeon Network SFTP service for several years now for the transfer of high amounts of data from our clients. Great interface with a lot of configuration possibilities, very easy to use and setup, and the support is really great with an excellent response time."
